day, and interest in its result grows stronger owing to the uncertainty of the chances of the several candidates. This district is a very large one, and the man who makes a thorough canvass in it has all he wants to, do. The republicans are not without a chance of electing their candidate if they use the proper discretion in selecting him. From what can be learned they will make a strong fight, and will work in harmony for their choice.

Mr. John W. Owens of this place was awakened a few evenings since by hearing a noise on the roof of his back porch, and quietly stealing to the window overlocking the same he discovered a man in the set of getting into his house. The burglar moved to another window, which opened into an adjoining room. The man evidently heard Mr. Owens come into this latter room, and jumping from the roof to the ground made good his escape.

Farmers say that all the late potatoes will be worthless unless rain comes in a day or so. They also say that they were compelled to cut their corn, as the latter is literally burning up, and will be worthless even for feeding purposes unless got into the bare. No such a drought has ever visited this section of the country, and no signs of a rain are yet visible.

ties Connected With the G. A. R. Encampment-Movements of Well-known People-

The President's short stay at the White House gave a good many of his callers an opportunity to make inquiries for Mrs. Harrison. He speke encouragingly of her condition, but was in a hurry to leave town again, so as to spend Sunday at Loon Lake. It is getting cool up in the mountains and it would not be surprising if the mountains and it would not be surprising if the mountains and it would not be surprising if the mountains and it would not be surprising if the decided that Mrs. Harrison will not be able to return to this city for some time yet, the desimability of her staying at Lakewood or some other resort nearer home during the entire fall has been talked of lately.

The White House corridor is full of scaffolding and the workmen's paraphernalia and the President had to step around very carefully when he was there. It will be finished in time for the President's reception to the G. A. R. After the encampment there will be something of a calm in official circles until October, when the President and cabinet and the ladtes of their families will go out to Chicago for the world's fair ceremonies. This trip is looked forward to with considerable pleasure all around.

Miss Jessie Miller will return shortly from a visit with friends at Watkins Glen. Miss Miller has been having a most enjoyable visit in Newport with Dr. and Mrs. Roosa.

Mme. Covarrubias was in town a day last week, being much improved in health. Mrs. and Miss Foster and Miss Rusk are expected home from Europe next Wednesday, and Secretary Foster will go to New York to meet them. The chances are that their ship will be quarantined and the Secretary will have to wait for a while before he can welcome them home. It is not likely that they will do more than make a short stay, if any here, as they extend to spend the coming two months at their next week. Mrs. and Miss Foster and Miss Rusk are ex-

One meets a few more familiar faces every day now and the towering wagon loads of trunks on the streets this morning seem to indicate that many of the householders are turning their faces homeward. From the northern resorts there has already commenced a migration which in a few days more will leave them to their accustomed winter quiet. At Newport the gayecustomed winter quiet. At Newport the gaye-ties are keeping up with unusual spirit among the cottagers, who will scarcely desert their ele-gant habitations for a fortnight yet. the turning of the leaf will be watched there by a stay of two weeks in the Blue Ridge mount as distinguished a social audience as ever before. The desire among our leisure classes to cach autumn prolong their outings is an encouraging sign amid the feverish excitement in which they usually live. For Washington we have not enought of these favored souls who are now held down by business demands, to make any appreciable difference in their comings and complete until December, and the chances are this fall will see them as laggard as usual. But

Just at present there is a small army of excursionists in town who are immensely interested in the work of preparation for the encampment, and whose footfalls are heard in the White House vestibule every hour of the day. When these little groups give way to the coming masses Washingtonians will be treated to as much excitement as they could possibly derive from elbowing the crowd on the board walk at Atlantic City.

In the stream provements on it.

Yesterday Westley Parker, a man with a family, shot by a careless accident William Fish and killed him. Fish was about twenty-one years of age. Both are colored. The two were getting ready for a hunt. Parker's gun lock was loaded. The hammer of the gun was leaded. The hammer of the gun would not stand when cocked and Parker was trying to tinker it while Fish held up the muzzle of the gun, standing in front of it. Parker heed lessly drew back the hammer and let it drop. the gun, standing in front of it. Parker heed-lessly drew back the hammer and let it drop. The gun was discharged and the charge or load entered Fish' body and he was dead in a few

In a social way nothing is expected of a startling nature until very late in the fall. There will be a few weddings and some pretty ones, and these events will start the ball going. Then some of the fine houses will have new occupants and that is going to send a little new life along the stream. Mr. and Mrs. John Ingalls of Cincinnati will move into the Anderson house on K street and from their large acquaintance it is not likely it will be a very lonesome corner thereafter. Many persons in admiring this house have commented on the unobstructiveness of the front door and what a very small section of the front is taken up with it, while section of the front is taken up with it, while the arrangements for carriage visitors through the porte cochere are so ample. A bright young woman, who owns herself a palatial brown front with the generous porch our ancestors liked, says that evidently in these kind of houses only carriage visitors are expected.

Just to point this idea, people who have nothing else to talk about—and it is surprising how many there are in summer—dre wondering if Senator Brice is going to make any other provision for walkers than to use the carriage entrance at the Corcoran house.

It is worth while to come home and go house keeping in such mansions as Lieut, and Mrs. Clover and Mr. and Mrs. Frazer have provided for themselves. Mrs. Clover's house is a gem within and without and Mrs. Frazer's the embodiment of substantial ease and luxury.

There are probably no two houses which will come in for more comment this fall than the Leiter and the Whittemore houses. It is a real chicago block. It is said of Mr. Leiter's house that it fairly embodies all his own ideas, both in materials as well as methods of construction. Mr. and Mrs. Whittemore were able to give themselves fast as much ground form as they needed, and their house appeals to the large class of people who are sick and tired of climbing starrs. Their house is virtually only two stories, but is as big as two ordinary houses.
